A Pointed Protest From Maryland.

The Baltimore American editorially oppose the burial of the remains of General Grant in Central Park, on the grounds that it is a place of pleasure, devoid of the solemnity that befits the grave of a hero. The article says there is an evident purpose on the part of the shoddyhood in New York to make the grave of Grant a sort of a show, like the Obelisk, Bartholdi statue and Brooklyn bridge, and it will be impossible for American citizens of the future to feel for it the sort of reverence they feel for Mount Vernon. The burial at Central Park will, to some degree, demoralize the grave. It will become a New York show, like the Elephant at Coney Island. New York is the seat of all that is painful in Grant's life. It was there he fell among millionaires and sharpers and was dragged through humiliations unspeakable. It is true he received kindness and assistance there, also, but who is it that is not grieved to remember Grant as the receiver of charity—the Grant the people love and desire to hold in remembrance, not the Grant of Wall Street, but the Grant who led the Union armies to victory, and who for eight years was President of the United States. At the Soldiers' Home in Washington, he might find a fitting resting place amid Union soldiers who poured out their blood to earn his fame.

Discrimination Against American Ships.

New York, July 25th.—The Sun says: "A curious feature of the California freight market," said a ship-owner yesterday, "is the fact that foreign ships regularly receive a shilling or two more per quarter on wheat to the continent or to Liverpool than American ships can obtain. But when an American ship is sold and gets a foreign register, her defects are thereby cured, and she receives the highest rates. This is said to be due to the fact that foreign insurance companies charge higher rates on American than on ships of European nationality." Some people assert that this discrimination is due to the desire of the British to hit the American merchant mariner when he is down; but others say the American merchant mariner is either dead or is making a living as a railroader, and there is, therefore, no one capable of manning American ships, which have to depend on Dago and Chinese, and thus the risk on them is greater than on foreign ships, which are manned by sailors of their own nationality.

The Ex-Confederates Honor Their Magnanimous Conqueror.

Dispatches from cities all over the South and from numerous points on the Atlantic coast and Middle States show that General Grant's death was received with universal sorrow. This is strongly marked in the South, and all the leading papers of that portion of the country comment editorially in the warmest terms of praise of the "Hero of Appomattox," and comparisons and contrasts are drawn between the two great bodies that met there, one as victor, the other as vanquished. Nearly all the leading commercial exchanges adjourned at once, or passed resolutions of respect and decided to adjourn on the day of the funeral.

The President contemplated leaving Washington next Saturday on his vacation, but the death of General Grant has made it necessary for him to change his programme, and he will not leave the city for that purpose until after the burial of the ex-President.

General B. F. Butler has accepted an invitation to deliver an oration at the memorial services to be held at Lowell, Massachusetts, in honor of General Grant. The date has not yet been fixed.

Governor Hill, of New York, has tendered Mrs. Grant and family the use of the Executive Mansion during their stay in Albany.

Comforting Messages.

LONDON, July 24.—Mrs. Grant: My heartfelt sympathy in the sad affliction that has befallen you.

MRS. MACKAY.
MEIKERINGTON, July 24.—Mrs. U. S. Grant: Allow me to offer my sincere sympathy on your great loss.

LORD RIFON.
TOKIO, July 25.—Madame General Grant: I learned with much sorrow of the death of your husband. I tender you my sincere condolence and deep sympathy.

PRINCE TOWHITO.
Mrs. Grant—I offer my expressions of deep sympathy to the widow of the great leader of the Union armies.

COMTE DE PARIS.
Mrs. Grant—By instructions of President Diaz I send you the most sincere condolence of the Mexican Government for the loss of our great friend, the illustrious General Grant, and personally I tender my own and my family's heartfelt sympathy in your bereavement.

IGNACIO MARISCAL.
Mrs. Grant—Pray receive my loving sympathy. We feel deeply for you all. I so highly appreciated the General's kindness to me in my sorrow, even when he was such a sufferer.

MRS. FREELINGHUYSEN.
Mrs. Grant—Delaware tenders the warmest sympathy of her citizens in this great hour of private and public grief.

CHARLES E. STOKLEY.
Unauthorized Production of Silver Currency.

New York, July 25th.—A Herald's Washington special says: That there was much more silver in the Treasury and in circulation than had been coined by the United States Government and consequently that some private enterprise must be engaged in making standard silver dollars and fractional currency of good silver of proper weight and fineness, which cannot be distinguished from those issued by the Government, has been for some time the subject of investigation by the Treasury Department, and the impression given out that such a thing is quite possible. The Government buys $24,000,000 worth of silver bullion per year, and with that coins from 27,000,000 to 28,000,000 standard silver dollars, making a profit of from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 per year. A private establishment, possessing itself of counterfeit dies made from a proof piece from the Mint, might easily make this, or a greater profit, if they could secrete themselves beyond detection. It is believed that a great quantity of the silver current is the unauthorized production of some private establishment.

The President's Letter to Mrs. Grant.

The letter of President Cleveland to Mrs. Grant is here reproduced:

EXECUTIVE MANSION
WASHINGTON July 23, 1885.
MY DEAR MADAM:—Obeying the dictates of my personal feeling, and in accord with what I am sure is the universal sentiment of his fellow-countrymen towards your late husband, I am solicitous that every tribute of respect and affection should be duly rendered, and with constant consideration of your personal wishes on the subject. Adjutant General Richard S. Drum is charged with the delivery of the note and will receive and convey to me any intimation of the wishes of yourself and your children in respect to the burial, the conduct of the funeral ceremonies and the part which may be borne by those charged with the administration of the Government. With sincere condolence, your friend and servant,
GROVER CLEVELAND.

Cattlemen Kicking.

A meeting of cattlemen leasing lands in Indian Territory was held at St. Louis the other day to discuss the President's proclamation declaring Arapahoe and Cheyenne leases void and ordering all cattle removed from this reservation within the next forty days. The proclamation was warmly discussed and another meeting was held Friday. The cattlemen claim that it is impossible to move 400,000 head of cattle in forty days, and say they have no places, as all the ranges in the Territory and Texas are now covered, and Kansas and Colorado have quarantined against Texas cattle, while in New Mexico there is a strong feeling against cattle, even if there were room there.

One Dissenting Voice.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The following is from the Sun's Atlanta special. Atlanta seems to be about the only published exception to the otherwise universal grief and respect expressed throughout the country, even in the south. When a motion to adjourn in honor of General Grant was made today in the Legislature, Harrison of Quitman, made a sensation by saying: "I regret exceedingly this most unseemingly scene, but when I am asked to compliment the memory of any man, alive or dead, upon whose services rested the last hope of my native land, then you may charge me with whatever you may please, but it shall not have my support. It shall not be said that I compliment the services of a man who deprived Georgia of her rights as she believed them. Unseemingly as this quarrel may be, and anxious as I have been to prevent, I earnestly ask the introducers to take some different step. Never here or elsewhere will I, under any circumstances, attempt to say on any occasion that Georgia was wrong, or that her sons were traitors, and compliment the author of her misery. I will not do it." [Great excitement and some applause.] The speaker was howled down and the resolution was passed.

Public Scandal in Denmark.

The Copenhagen Conservative journals refer to a public scandal, involving a Professor in the University, the President of a leading scientific society, a most eminent author of Denmark, several wealthy merchants and some members of the Magistracy. They are accused of having criminal intercourse with young girls. Ten of the culprits have been arrested, and two committed suicide. The exposure resulted from an attempt to extort money, which was resisted.

Brazilian Wives.

Chancing to speak with the wife of a naval officer not long since about her experience when in South America with her husband, she told me of a strange and interesting fact with regard to Rio Janeiro, says an eastern writer. In this city is a large and gloomy convent, built and used for the purpose of holding the wives of such members of the place as might, by duty or necessity, or pleasure, at any time be called upon to absent themselves from their homes. The custom, peculiar and barbarous though it may seem, is one sanctioned by the usage of years, and has its origin in the family of officials high in power. Should the breaking out of a war at any distant spot require the reinforcement of soldiers from the city of Rio Janeiro, her citizens quickly respond to the summons after first taking the precaution of placing their wives safely behind the frowning impenetrable walls of a convent, secure from harm, until the return of their liege lord and master. One of the saddest cases on record is that of a young and beautiful woman, who for twenty-five years has been incarcerated, never in all this time being permitted either to visit or see a single relative or friend. In the early days of girlhood she was coerced by her parents into a marriage with her present husband, though knowing at the time that her affections were bestowed upon another. Submitting to the decree of her elders, the poor young thing assumed the duties of a wife to a man whose ruling passions seems to have been an insane jealousy and a morbid desire to be revenged for an act wholly inadequate to the terrible punishment meted out. Shortly after the marriage it so happened one day that the lady's husband observed her throw a smiling greeting to some one outside. Going quickly to the casement, he beheld the object of her salutation to be no other than her former lover, stand on the opposite side of the way. Without a word of warning or expostulation to his girlish bride, the enraged husband caused her to be placed at once within the convent's living tomb. Since that time twenty-five long dreary years have passed, and though the lady's relatives have exerted every influence which brains could plan or wealth carry out, yet all to no avail. Repeated statements of the case have gone before every high tribunal in the land. The Emperor and even the Pope at Rome, as head of the whole Catholic Church, have been appealed to, and given the matter their favorable consideration, yet the only possible open sesame to the convent doors is a word from the husband, which, despite every persuasion, he sternly refuses to utter. The peculiar feature of the affair is that a woman, be she guilty or innocent, can be released by no earthly power save that of her legal superior in the matrimonial bond.
